Travertin collection

Travertin is limestone formed by a process of precipitation of calcium carbonate supersaturated water from hot springs. Branches, leaves and other matter that fall into this water and later decompose cause the distinctive irregular pores in this material.

KIYO dining tables

Our round dining table is now available with a travertin top. This round travertin dining table has a beautiful, minimalist design, giving it the appearance of a classic bistro table.

Thanks to the stylish, practical center leg, there is enough space for several people to sit around the table. We designed this luxury frame to give the dining table an extra dimension.

The round shape is available in six different sizes, so there's always a table to match your home interior. This round travertin dining table has a refined finish, which creates a luxury, vintage appearance.

Delivery

IMPORTANT NOTE: always carry the marble upright.

Do not place it flat in a truck or during lifting. This will break the stone.

Good to know:

- The table sheet is placed on top of the table – it's not attached
- Felt pads should be placed between the frame and the floor
- Plastic caps should be placed between the table sheet and the frame
- The FLOW table is attached with a screw wire inside, while placing the table sheet on the cone it can be turned in until it's attached
- The air holes of the frame should point to the floor (making them not visible)
- Tools required: Phillips screwdriver

DO NOT USE: Stanley knife or any other sharp material to open the box or unwrap the packaging. This will cause scratching.

ATTENTION: Always use 2 people to put the tabletop on the frame when the caps are glued. Place the tabletop straight upon the frame.

Upkeep & Maintenance

Soon you will receive a natural stone product. We want you to be able to enjoy your purchase to the full. Therefore, we would like to give you some tips for the maintenance of this natural product.

Tip 1: Impregnate your table before use

Marble and Travertin are porous, soft natural stone types. Without a protective layer, stains quickly appear. It is therefore important to impregnate the table before use. The impregnation agent provides better protection against stains. However, impregnating the product does not make the marble table completely stain-resistant. Marble remains sensitive to liquids, heat and especially acidic products. We recommend always using coasters and placemats. Something spilt? Then wipe the surface immediately with a slightly damp cloth. Always dry afterwards with a dry, fluffy cloth.

Tip 2: Maintain your table

Daily use and cleaning of the marble will slowly wear down the impregnation layer. It is therefore important to repeat the impregnation treatment every 2 to 3 months. The intensity of the repetition depends on how intensively the marble is used. If you notice earlier that the surface looks a little dull or starts to absorb moisture, for example, we advise you to re-impregnate the marble. Marble will always be sensitive, especially to acidic products such as lemon, vinegar or wine. But heat, candle wax, water, coffee and grease can also cause stains.

Tip 3: Cleaning the table

When cleaning travertin tables, avoid using aggressive (acidic) products like Glassex, Dreft and wet wipes. Rather, use a mild concentration of green soap, a special marble cleaner or simply a slightly damp cloth. However, we do not recommend using a cleaning agent every day. Often a slightly damp cloth is sufficient. When you clean the surface, dry it immediately with a clean, dry cloth.

Tip 4: Recognise natural irregularities

Travertin is mined from nature and has a unique character. That is why every leaf is different and makes your purchased product so special. Natural irregularities are a normal occurrence with this type of stone. Think of fossil-like spots, hairline cracks, small holes or dents in the stone: also called Taroli. These natural phenomena are very normal and will never lead to problems.
